FROM VICKSBURG.

Vicksburg, Dec. 27.

Heavy firing in direction of Young's Point this morning.

LATER FROM THE NORTH.

The Richmond Enquirer has Northern dates of the 24th. We condense from the budget before us the following:

Seward and Chase have resumed their duties in the Departments of State and the Treasury. The Herald says, "the latest phase of the Cabinet imbroglio at Washington is a temporary armistice, under which things return to the position in which they were. Mr. Seward has been persuaded by the President to reconsider his resignation and to resume in full his duties in the State Department. According as upon his retirement all the other indicated Cabinet resignations and changes depended, so, with his restoration, there will probably be for the present no changes whatever."

Lincoln, on the 23d, acknowledged the reception of the resignations of Seward and Chase, and, after due deliberation, came to the conclusion that the acceptance of their resignations would be incompatible with the public welfare. On the final settlement of the difficulty, the Washington correspondent of the Herald writes:

"The three days' wonder has ended. The broken Cabinet has been repaired, the resigning Secretaries have returned to their places, the President has assumed the responsibility of the conduct of his political advisers, and the meddling Senatorial caucus has been rebuked. This virtual refusal of the President to submit to the attempted dictation of the Senators who desire to arrange a Cabinet for him to suit themselves, has created no good feeling between Mr. Lincoln and the would be dictators. Although there are many here who believe that he has missed the golden opportunity of arranging the whole Cabinet so that it should conform to the public sentiment unmistakably manifested in the recent elections, yet the restoration of peace, or at least the return to the old order in the administration, has afforded relief to those who feared that the pressure brought to bear upon Mr. Lincoln would have compelled him to adopt the policy of extreme radicalism in his Cabinet, which would unquestionably have created a disastrous commotion throughout all the loyal States, and probably have produced a revolution as fearful as the rebellion itself.

It is now plainly understood that there are to be no changes whatever either in the Cabinet or the military commanders, and at least for the present affairs will be conducted pretty much as heretofore.

This refusal of Mr. Lincoln to yield to the impertinent importunity of the Senatorial caucus is regarded as a manifestation on his part of more firmness and determination to act the part of President of the United States than he has exhibited at other times when the same pressure was brought to bear upon him.

THE DEFEAT AT FREDERICKSBURG.

Burnside's official account of the late disaster at Fredericksburg is published in the "Herald," and is characterized by that paper as a "curious document, which evinces the generosity of the writer's nature with more force than it does his judgment as a military commander." We annex Burnside's account:

HEADQ'RS OF THE ARMY OF THE POTOMAC,
FALMOUTH, Dec. 19, 1862.

Maj. Gen. H. W. Halleck, General-in-Chief U. S. Army, Washington—

General: I have the honor to offer the following reasons for moving the army of the Potomac across the Rappahannock sooner than had been anticipated by the President, Secretary of War or yourself, and for crossing at a point different from the one indicated to you at our last meeting at the President's.

During my preparations for crossing at the place I had first selected I discovered that the enemy had thrown a large portion of his force down the river and elsewhere, thus weakening his defences in front, and also thought I discovered that he did not anticipate the crossing of our whole force at Fredericksburg; and I hoped, by rapidly throwing the whole command over at that place, to separate, by a vigorous attack, the forces of the enemy on the river below from the forces behind and on the crest, in rear of the town, in which case we could fight him with great advantage in our favor.

To do this we had to gain a height on the extreme right of the crest, which height commanded a new road lately made by the enemy for purposes of more rapid communication along his lines, which point gained, his position along the crest would have been scarcely tenable, and he could have been driven from them easily by an attack on his front in connection with a movement in the rear of the crest.

How near we came to accomplishing our object future reports will show. But for the fog and unexpected and unavoidable delay in building the bridges, which gave the enemy twenty-four hours more to concentrate his forces in his strong positions, we would almost certainly have succeeded, in which case the battle would have been, in my opinion, far more decisive than if we had crossed at the places first selected. As it was, we came very near success.

Failing in accomplishing the main object, we remained in order of battle two days—long enough to decide that the enemy would not come out of his strongholds to fight us with his infantry—after which we recrossed the river to this side unmolested, without the loss of men or property.

As the day broke our long lines of troops were seen marching to their different positions as if going on parade. Not the least demoralization or disorganization existed.

To the brave officers and soldiers who accomplished the feat of thus recrossing the river in the face of the enemy I owe everything.

For the failure in the attack I am responsible, as the extreme gallantry, courage and endurance shown by them were never excelled, and would have carried the points had it been possible.

To the families and friends of the dead I can only offer my heartfelt sympathies; but for the wounded, I can offer my earnest prayers for their comfortable and final recovery.

The fact that I decided to move from Warrenton on to this line rather against the opinion of the President, Secretary of War and yourself, and that you left the whole movement in my hands, without giving me orders, makes me the more responsible.

I will visit you very soon and give you more definite information, and finally will send you my detailed report, in which a special acknowledgment will be made of the services of the different grand divisions, corps and my general and staff departments of the army of the Potomac, to whom I am so much indebted for their support and hearty co-operation.

I will add here that the movement was made earlier than you expected, and after the President, Secretary and yourself requested me not to be in haste, for the reason that we were supplied much sooner by the different staff departments than was anticipated when I last saw you.

Our killed amounts to eleven hundred and fifty-two, our wounded to about nine thousand, and our prisoners to about seven hundred, which last have been paroled and exchanged for about the same number taken by us.

The wounded were all removed to this side of the river, and are being well cared for, and the dead were all buried under a flag of truce.

The surgeons report a much larger proportion of slight wounds than usual, 1,632 only being treated in hospitals.

I am glad to represent the army at present time in good condition.

Thanking the government for that entire support and confidence which I have always received from them,

I remain, General,
Very respectfully,
Your ob't servant,
A. E. BURNSIDE,
Maj. Gen. Comd'g the Army of the Potomac.

LINCOLN REFUSES TO ACCEPT BURNSIDE'S RESIGNATION.

Burnside arrived in Washington on the 20th and tendered his resignation, which Lincoln refused to accept. Burnside left for the army of the Potomac on the 22d.

ANOTHER STATEMENT FROM BURNSIDE.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 23.—The following has been received at Headquarters:

HEADQUARTERS ARMY OF THE POTOMAC,
Dec. 23d, 1862.

To Major General H. W. Halleck, General-in-Chief:—In my report to you of the 19th inst., the number of wounded was stated at about 9,000, and the number receiving hospital treatment as 1,630.

Both of these are wrong. On the authority of Dr. Letterman, our Medical Director, I learn the whole number of wounded is between six and seven thousand, and about one-half of these are receiving treatment in hospital.

(Signed) A. E. BURNSIDE,
Major General Commanding.

LINCOLN TO THE ARMY.

Lincoln has just issued the following address to the Yankee army, in which it will be seen he attributes the recent defeat at Fredericksburg to accident:

EXECUTIVE MANSION,
Washington, Dec. 22, 1862.

To the Army of the Potomac:—I have just read your Commanding General's preliminary report of the battle of Fredericksburg. Although you were not successful, the attempt was not an error, nor the failure other than an accident.

The courage with which you, in an open field, maintained the contest against an entrenched foe, and the consummate skill and success with which you crossed and recrossed the river, in face of the enemy, show that you possess all the qualities of a great army, which will yet give victory to the cause of the country and of popular government. Condoling with the mourners for the dead, and sympathising with the severely wounded, I congratulate you that the number of both is comparatively so small.

I tender you, officers and soldiers, the thanks of the nation.

ABRAHAM LINCOLN.

GEN. FOSTER'S OFFICIAL REPORT.

The following is the official report by Gen. Foster of his late operations in North Carolina:

December 23, 1862.—Major General H. W. Halleck, General-in-Chief:—My expedition was a perfect success. I burned the railroad bridge at Goldsboro' and Mount Olive, and tore up several miles of the track of the Wilmington and Weldon Railroad. We fought four engagements, viz: At South-west Creek, Kingston, White Hall and Goldsboro', and whipped the enemy handsomely every time.

J. G. FOSTER,
Brigadier General.

A RICH LETTER.—The Grand Rapids (Mich) Enquirer contains the following letter from a friend in "straightened circumstances" living in the Far West who is obliged to write for a living:

At present, I am leading editor of this d—d Abolition sheet, just by the force of circumstances. The political editor is sick and in the country, and the duty devolves upon me of supplying his place. I pen daily editorials full of the most pernicious doctrines, and teach principles which, if acted upon, would divorce the Church of Rome from the Blessed Virgin, to say nothing about "busting" up the Union. I state truths that I don't believe a word in, and denounce as a dangerous and damnable heresy the belief of our fathers, which my prophetic soul tells me is right.

GUILLOTINES FOR THE UNITED STATES.—A correspondent of the London Morning Herald charges that a recent steamer from Liverpool took out twenty-four French "guillotines," consigned to a confidential agent of President Lincoln, in the city of New York.

General Order,
No. 15.

I. THE PRESIDENT OF THE CONFEDERATE States having deemed it necessary to call into service, under the provisions of the recent act of Congress, all persons liable to military duty between the ages of 18 and 40 years, the Commanding Officers of the Militia will call out their respective Regiments and enroll and conduct to the Camp of Instruction all persons liable to military duty under this law, at such times as Colonel Peter Mallett, Chief Enrolling Officer for the State, may direct.

II. The enemy are pressing upon us in great numbers, with the intention to overwhelm us by a winter campaign. Our danger now comes from the South side of James river, and as the scene of war approaches nearer to our borders, it becomes North Carolinians to rush even more promptly than before to the defence of our own territory. If we can drive him back once more, as we have so often done, there is every reason to hope that his strength will be effectually broken. The various officers entrusted with the execution of this order are again commanded to use all diligence in arresting deserters and absentees without leave from the army, and all good citizens who prize liberty and independence, are earnestly invoked to assist in hurrying off all such to their regiments. The brave and patriotic soldier will not over-stay his furlough unless providentially hindered. The coward alone will shirk (at home) whilst his braver comrades endure the heat and burthen of the fight.

By order of Governor VANCE:
Dec 13-3t J. G. MARTIN, Adj't Gen.

FIFTY DOLLARS REWARD.

RUNAWAY FROM THE UNDERSIGNED, ON THE 25th December, a negro boy named ANDERSON, about twenty-five years old, perfectly black—heavy set, and weight from 175 to 190 pounds when he left.—He has been hand-cuffed. Said boy is supposed to have been raised by Mr. Lewis, of Sampson county, N. C.—When he left he had on a blue jacket and white pants, very ragged; has good teeth and speaks freely. I bought him of Mr. L. P. Robinson, of Augusta, Ga., on the 15th instant, and was on my way to Richmond Va., and had to lay over in Raleigh on account of not being able to get passage. I was camped by the side of the Railroad track. He left about dark.

I will pay the above reward to any person who will deliver said boy to any jail for safe-keeping so that I can get him. Any information will be thankfully received.

CONSCRIPTION.

THOUSANDS IN THE CONFEDERATE STATES, owing to the different laws and exemption bills passed by the last two sessions of the Confederate States Congress, are so mystified as to their real duties that they know not what course to pursue. We advise all who really believe themselves subject to the law to report immediately at the respective camps appointed for the enrollment of Conscripts in the different States. To those who believe themselves exempt, we would respectfully say, that on securing our fee, which is Five Dollars, we will furnish them the law bearing on their cases and every additional information which we have gleaned from the action of the authorities in parallel cases, and we are prepared to take all the responsibility of such advice. We will do nothing but a LEGITIMATE business. Those whom we find are really liable, we will inform accordingly. Those who are not (and there are thousands in every State who are not) we will give them our advice with the law bearing upon their cases.

Having every facility, we are prepared to give every information regarding any other business connected with the army.

Owing to the heavy expense incurred in procuring this information, we will notice no communication unaccompanied with our retaining fee of Five Dollars.

ADMINISTRATOR'S SALE.

THE UNDERSIGNED, AS ADMINISTRATOR, WITH the will annexed of Henry W. Miller, deceased, will on the 20th day of January, 1863, at the auction room of James M. Towles, in the city of Raleigh, expose to public sale all the perishable property belonging to said estate, and also a large and valuable law and miscellaneous library, selected with great judgment and taste. The law library is complete, comprising the Reports and Digests of this and other States, and all elementary books. The miscellaneous library consists of works of History, Biography, Travels, &c., by approved authors. This is an opportunity seldom offered to the lawyer and student. Many of these books are out of print and not to be purchased at any price in the book stores. This library is believed to be one of the best in the State.

TERMS—A credit of six months will be given, the purchaser giving bond with approved security before the property is delivered.

D[illegible]

MONDAY, DEC. 2[illegible], 1862.

[illegible] Boys Wanted [illegible] who will attend to their [illegible] when required, are wanted [illegible] the Progress on the streets and at the cars. Boys [illegible] will make good wages.

[illegible] Wanted.—[illegible] quantities to sell at [illegible]

[illegible]

To Advertisers.—Persons sending us advertisements by mail [illegible] will do well to enclose money to pay for the same. We have no time to attend to books, bills and accounts or collect bills, all the force we can command being employed in [illegible] to print and mail the paper to the large number of subscribers that are pouring in upon us. In all cases, save those who advertise by contract, we would prefer that advertisements be paid for when handed in.

Special Notice to Subscribers.—All subscribers to the Progress out of the city are informed that their paper will be stopped in all cases when the time paid for expires, and those who wish the paper continued should be careful to remit money by the mail before the time is out. The only notice that will be given will be the stoppage of the paper. Subscribers will keep this in mind.

Single Copies of the Progress may be had at [illegible] from [illegible] the morning until [illegible] at night. Price FIVE CENTS.

Rumors, Speculations, &c.

Rumors of an advance upon Kinston, by the Yankees, continue to reach us from below, but we are assured by intelligent persons from Goldsboro' yesterday that these rumors are not credited at headquarters.

From the Blackwater, we have nothing [illegible], and rather incline to the opinion that no [illegible] is to be made from Suffolk. In fact the overwhelming defeat [illegible] the Yankees at Fredericksburg seems to have paralized their [illegible].

The news from the North is important, and if it be true as stated by [illegible] that the New York Tribune is out for [illegible] of the South as the only means of [illegible] peace, it [illegible] for Horace Greeley has more influence among the Northern people than any other [illegible] Lincoln not excepted.

We learn by a [illegible] from Richmond that [illegible] there talk [illegible] of an end being put [illegible] April. We have but little hope that there will be any more [illegible] by Burnside's army. We may [illegible] fighting in the Southwest, [illegible] the winter in Virginia, [illegible].

Morgan has made a raid in Kentucky, [illegible] prisoners, property, &c. Morgan and Forrest won't let the Yankees have [illegible] in Kentucky and Tennessee.

Reconstruction.—The Editor of the Milton Chronicle has been repeatedly asked if there was any [illegible] in our Legislature looking for re-construction. We can answer the Chronicle and all others [illegible] knowledge on this head: No such thing has been mentioned or thought of, and even were there a man in the Assembly so base as to think of such a proposition, he would not dare express it.

No more loyal body has ever assembled than the present North Carolina Legislature. True, we believe that the failure of the body to pass the Ten Regiment bill will be claimed at the North as an evidence of Union sentiment in North Carolina, and we have so expressed, but we do not believe that those who voted against the bill, intended or desired their votes to have that effect.

Yankees Betting on Burnside.—[illegible] that bets were freely made in New York that Lee would whip Burnside. This is not at all surprising, for however much the Yankee may bluster for fun when he puts his money up he is shrewd enough to bet on the winning side. Of course any sensible, clear-eyed [illegible] would bet on Lee's whipping the best General and best army they've got. The Yankee is no fool, [illegible].

[illegible] Battalion.—In the fight below Kinston, Lieut. D. W. Whitaker was wounded in leg, and Lieut. Carter in hand—neither of them seriously, however. Private [illegible] was mortally wounded—since dead.

[illegible].—Mr. [illegible], who was dispatched to Richmond to ask the [illegible] of the [illegible], returned last evening with the reverend gentleman.

For the Progress.

Lincoln in the Talmud.

An old friend [illegible] with the Chaldaic language and the Talmud, took him lately to an open volume of [illegible] "See the wonder. I find the name of Lincoln in the Talmud. Do you know the meaning of the word?" Of course I do, was the rejoinder. It is read Lin-coln, meaning in English, "Go [illegible]." Right, he says, and as [illegible] I make it out; and I think the name well appropriated to the man.

THE BRUTE REBUKED.

We find the following in a late issue of the New York World. It is from a lady, and unless the vile creature she denounces is totally lost to every sense of decency, his [illegible] cheek must tingle with the blush of shame when he reads it:

[illegible]

To the Editors of the World:

I thank you in the name of Woman, as well as of humanity, for [illegible] to speak the truth of the unmanly wretch who commands New Orleans. The name of Man is disgraced when applied to him.

My cheek has burned with shame that Americans (who are certainly [illegible] a chivalrous people) [illegible] such an outrage against his orders that he should [illegible] out of sight like a whipped cur.

I am a Northern woman and loyal, but I could not be a Woman and not feel [illegible] and contempt for the cowardly creature who will war upon women. Words are impotent when the feelings excited by this commander of the Union forces are to be expressed.

It is enough to make disloyal the warmest defender of the Union, to know that those who have our fate in their hands play with it so [illegible]. "How long, O Lord, how long" must we be made the sport of imbeciles and such men as Butler?

New York, Dec. 9, 1862.

Movements on the Georgia Coast.—The Savannah News of a late date says:

There was a rumor in town yesterday that the enemy had evacuated some of the islands on our coast. We have reason to believe that the report is true, but could learn nothing of the particulars.

Gen. Lee.—Speaking of the late battle at Fredericksburg, the Richmond Dispatch says, this is the tenth pitched battle in which General Lee has commanded, within less than six months, and in all of them he has been victorious. No other campaign except that of Italy in 1796, and that of [illegible] in 1814, presents such a result.

Grant has issued an order forbidding the [illegible] of any goods [illegible] either in the districts of the department of Tennessee without the signature of the commanding general, being first affixed to the invoice [illegible]. Steamboat captains are to be held responsible for any goods found on their boats not thus permitted.

An old [illegible] miles from Knoxville, made from an "ash-hopper," filled repeatedly with earth taken from beneath, $[illegible] worth of saltpetre.

[illegible]

We continue to give, as fast as we can procure them, the list of killed and wounded in the ever memorable battle of Fredericksburg, the 13th December 1862. It is a [illegible] but an honorable record. We will thank officials and private citizens who may be placed in possession of lists of killed and wounded in any of our Regiments, Battalions or Companies, to leave them with us for publication.

The Salem Press has the following from the [illegible]:

Through the kindness of Mrs. Robert Gray, of Winston, we have been permitted to make some extracts [illegible] Lt. S. W. Gray, of Co. D, 57th Regt. N. C. T. [illegible]. Lt. Gray is now [illegible] missing.

Co. D. is composed principally of young men from Forsyth (formerly Capt. [illegible]) in which many of our readers feel a deep interest. It will be seen that the company suffered severely, and the loss is explained by the fearful charge of a Yankee battery. To the extract:

Breastworks [illegible],
And in front of Yankee Batteries,
December 15, 1862.

We are in view of the Yankee forces, have been in line of battle five days, and nearly starved out. The Yankee batteries shell us occasionally.

We went in the fight on Saturday, the 13th, in the evening, the Regiment being ordered to drive some Yankees from the railroad, about a [illegible]. We drove them back and then charged a battery [illegible] playing on us all the time. It was [illegible] fighting. We received great compliments for our bravery, and our charge was considered a gallant one. We suffered severely, and the [illegible] lost about 200 in killed, wounded and missing. Our company suffered more than any other, 10 killed, 20 wounded, and 4 or 5 missing.

The killed are Captain Butner, [illegible]; John Conrad, W Hampton, A S [illegible], [illegible], Wm H. Mathews, S A [illegible], [illegible], Lewis Tesh, John V Sullivan. Wounded—[illegible]

There are several others missing.

Our regiment suffered severely in the loss of officers, to wit:

Lt Rowan Pinkston was killed; Capt Miller, shot through the head; Capt Carson, mortally wounded; Capt [illegible]; Lt [illegible] Hall, killed; Lt [illegible], mortally [illegible]; Lt Boyd, in side.

A NEW YORK PAPER ON LINCOLN AND HIS CABINET.

The World severely censures the conduct of the war, and points [illegible] into the Cabinet and the Washington authorities after the following fashion—

[illegible] the Secretary of War, an upstart in public life, whom neither knowledge nor experience [illegible], yet full of pretensions and impatience, alike puzzle-headed and pragmatical, his movements baffling all calculation and conjecture, now packing loyal men into Fort Lafayette, and now running a muck of generals in the field, a blatherskite and a blunderer, a mischief-maker and a marplot from the beginning. There stands the Secretary of the Navy, venerable in years, [illegible] at heart, mild in manners, admirably qualified to do the needful for a boarding school in

Murmuring streams, soft shades and springing flowers,
Lutes, laurels, seas of milk and ships of amber;

but as for his capacity to do the needful in these dread times on the broad ocean—go read it in the flaming tracks of the Sumpter and the Alabama. There stands, too, the Secretary of the Treasury, up to his eyes in irredeemable paper, and yet without knack enough to furnish even green backs for the scant monthly pay of the soldiers, though the consequence be a violation of the public faith pledged them, the untold suffering of their families at home, and their own demoralization and desertion to a degree incalculably damaging to the national cause. There, too, stands the man who calls himself General-in-Chief, the President's chosen military manager and adviser, whose strategy is seen in [illegible] dispatching the Banks expedition to Texas, when every principle of common sense required it to bear on Richmond, whose business habits are illustrated in his forgetting the pontoons, though he had expressly promised them, and whose judgment is shown by his persistent order to storm Fredericksburg heights in spite of the conclusive reasons of General Burnside against it.

The World, after pronouncing the North on the brink of ruin, continues—

How can the country be saved with such men in charge of its destiny? Human reason [illegible] in vain for an answer. [illegible] there any prospect of a change? How can it come? The President is blindly and obstinately confident in these men. Of public opinion he takes no heed. In fact he knows nothing of it as it really exists; for it is notorious that he reads as little of newspapers—which are the only true index of public opinion—as the child unborn. His notions of the popular feeling are made up mainly from the representations of the interested coteries about him, and the fugitive statements of the few visitors who can quiet his jesting tongue long enough to get his serious ear. Of course notions thus gained are both crude and worthless.

What then? Must the nation surely perish? Is there no remedy against all this incapacity? We vouch for nothing. The case at best is deplorable.

Eleven Indians and One Canteen.—The Santa Fe Gazette of the 8th ult. contains an account of an extraordinary affair, which we reproduce:

When the troops which moved from Fort Union to Fort Stanton had reached a point within 20 miles of the latter post, a chief named Mamanita, together with his band, were brought into camp, where they professed friendship and reported that hostile bands were in the neighborhood. In consequence of this information Capt. Graydon, with twenty-five men from each company in this command, was detailed to hunt up the hostile Indians and also to search for missing stock. Their company was accompanied by Mamanita and his men.

On the road a difficulty occurred between Capt. Graydon and Mamanita about a canteen which belonged to the former. It had been handed to the latter, and he said he and his braves would keep it or fight for it. Capt. Graydon then said, "Fight be it," and fired a double-barreled gun at the chief, killing him and one of the braves. The firing then became pretty general, and before it ceased eleven of the Indians were killed.

[illegible] It had, however, been for a short time in the possession of the Confederates, and had recently been reoccupied by Gen. McNeil. It was then discovered that a man named Andrew Allsman [illegible] the Federal occupation. It is now supposed that he had been killed. He may have [illegible]; all that is known of him is that he was taken from his home. This unexplained absence of one individual formed the excuse of Gen. McNeil for murdering in cold blood ten of the prisoners in his hands—men who had nothing to do with Allsman, and who were, in all probability, captured at the time that Allsman left Palmyra. It was a deliberate and cold-blooded act of military murder, [illegible] with all the forms of military [illegible].
